Good Time to Review Your Household Safety Checklist

Americans and their children are staying at home as much as possible to fight this unprecedented public health crisis. All too often, we have witnessed the aftermath of a child seriously injured at home. Knowing that kids and their parents are spending more time at home, we decided it was a good time to review the most common causes of childhood household injury. Also featured is a household safety checklist. Click on the “Read More” to the right and help prevent injuries to the children in your life. Our sincere wish, now as always, is that you and your loved ones stay healthy and safe.

Safety Checklist Protects Kids at Home, Now and In the Future

Many families are now working, playing, learning, cooking and living almost every moment of the day at home. We want your household to be as safe and healthy as possible. Unfortunately, unforeseen home dangers are always a risk, pandemic or not. Take this extra time at home to remind yourself and your family of the best ways to stay injury-free right now and in the brighter future ahead.
